STATEWIDE "DRY"
BILL IS FAVORED BY
REUBEN HOWARD*Legislator Will Vote Favorably in Committee on Local Option.*OUTLINES TEMPERANCE VIEWS*Crow Probe Bill Is Passed by the House After It Had Been Amended to Include Only Senate and House Employees; Other Lawmaking News.*Special to The Courier.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 12.—Representative Reuben Howard today broke his silence on the local option bill. He has heretofore been regarded as a doubtful member of the Law and Order Committee but he gave out a statement that he would vote in committee favorably to reporting out all temperance bills.

"Although I will vote to bring out all the temperance bills for a vote in the House, I will use all my energy to support the Steel resolution for a Constitutional amendment for State-wide prohibition," said Howard.

Following this announcement the Anti-Saloon League is claiming the preliminary battle expected in committee tonight.

Senator Crow's bill providing a probe of State employees, which was amended to include only the House and Senate employees, passed the House. A committee is directed to report March 15, providing the bill passes the Senate and is approved by the Governor.

Senator McCully has introduced a bill in the Senate making it unlawful to use any type of mining machine in mining stumps, pillars or ribs in bituminous mines. A second bill by the same member increases the age limit for mine inspectors applicants to 45 years. Senator Medelman introduced a bill providing for the State to pay half the cost of constructing sewage disposal plants.

Representative Goss is a member of the sub-committee which will consider all cold storage bills. The bills passed by the House today and prohibiting the carrying of red flags in parades, and paying election officers the same as primaries as general elections. Another bill introduced were those authorizing municipalities to regulate the rates of water companies; requiring artificial support where coal, rock or minerals have been removed from the surface; prohibiting the employment of a minor more than eight hours a day.

The "Black Hand" bill passed the House by a vote of 17 to 9. The bill provides severe penalties for extortion or attempted extortion by threats.

Representative Donahoe of Schuylkill introduced bills to make sweeping changes in the criminal laws. Donahoe's measure would divide the State into two districts, anthracite and bituminous. There would be a chief for each district at a salary of $5,000 a year.

The defeat of the anti-gambling liquor bill in the House yesterday is taken to indicate that the local option measures will have much rough sledding in the Senate if they may not get as far as the Senate.

The House today passed a resolution favoring the income tax amendment to the Federal Constitution. The resolution providing for the creation of the Morgantown reform school was defeated.

A bill was introduced in the Legislature by Adams of Luzerne providing that where two adjoining counties having more than 200 square miles of territory each and each having a population of at least 100,000, may, upon a vote of the people, form a third party.

Among other bills introduced in the House this morning were: Providing that no quail in the State be shot for a period of five years; repealing the secret marriage laws of 1791 and 1793; prohibiting the use of coloring in oleomargarine.

JUDGE UPHOLDS MENOnly Wrecking Turns Pay Envelope
Over to His Wife.

Thomas and Mary Dulaney were before Justice Thomas Dulaney in Baltimore. There had been a row when Thomas had not turned over to Mary the entire contents of Saturday's pay envelope and could not furnish a plausible excuse for the absence of $3. The Judge sided with Thomas.

"The Court is not anxious to start any surrogate argument," he said, "but the Court holds that the husband is the head of the household under the laws of God and man—anyway under the laws of Maryland. I am here to enforce two laws despite the proclamations of the feminist."

"No man who is cognizant of his rights would turn over to his wife the management or the dictation of the distribution of his wages. It is not only his right but his duty to manage the financial affairs of the home. In the opinion of the Court any man who would do such a thing should be branded as a weak character whom no woman should be proud of."

"The Court finds that the wife was to blame in this assault case, her action being equivalent to a first blow. Thomas has a right to his $3. The case is dismissed."

To Try Motors.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 12.—A military commission will probably sit here tomorrow to try the 50 military motorists of the Paint and Cabin Creek districts arrested for rioting.

EXPECT MORE ARRESTS IN
W. VA. BRIBERY SCANDAL*"Men Higher Up" Sought by Burns
Men Who Charge Corruption Fund in Senatorial Contest.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 12.—The arrests of from 8 to 10 additional members of the West Virginia Legislature is expected here today, following the arrest yesterday of State Senator S. S. Smith, and Delegates S. J. G. Rhodes, Roth Buff, T. J. Ashbury and David Hill, on charges of accepting bribes.

The men were taken into custody at the instance of Burns' operatives, who secured the evidence against them. Members of the Burns force declare that they are not going to rest with the apprehension of members of the Legislature, but intend continuing their investigations until they get the men higher up. These are said to be men high in the political life of the country.

It was said here this morning that the Burns men were employed to make the investigation by Colonel William Seymour Edwards, one of the leading Republican candidates for the position of United States Senator.

Republican leaders, however, claim that the investigation was started by Democratic members of the Legislature, who wished to have the Republican members of the Legislature convicted of bribery so that they would be unable to vote, and the Democrats would be able to elect their candidate, Clarence W. Watson.

It is probable that a United States Senator from West Virginia will not be chosen during the life of the present Legislature. Other members of the body declare that they will not vote on the question until the charges against the men arrested yesterday after probe to the bottom.

READY TO INTERVENEJust U. S. Will Not Intervene in Mexico Unless Forced To.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—After working all night, the War Department today is prepared to send troops to Mexico at a moment's notice to Mexico.

A statement issued from the White House this morning expressed the opinion that it will not be necessary for the Administration to violate its non-intervention policy, but at the same time orders were issued dispatching two additional warships to Mexican waters.

Admiral Rodgers, commander of the Atlantic fleet, wireless the War Department this morning that orders to send two vessels to Mexico had been received, and that he had dispatched the USS Vermont and USS Nebraska.

mander Cannot See Why Proper Protection Is Not Afforded Through a Police Force Named by Council.

Rumors which persist in circulating about town as to the effect that the detail of State Constables, which has been on duty here since the patrolmen struck, is to be recalled to Greensburg at an early date.

When the first report reached City Hall yesterday afternoon, the council endeavored to ascertain if Connellsville is to be left without protection while the police department is disorganized. Sergeant Thomas McLaughlin, who spent Sunday in Greensburg, pleaded ignorance of the intentions of his superior.

It is said that Captain Adams is coming here for the purpose of conducting an investigation into local conditions. He, according to the story, is of the opinion that Connellsville does not need his men here; that their presence is more urgently required at other places.

Troop A is short of men. The troop is not fully recruited and with the detail of five men on duty here it is further crippled.

If the men are recalled the police situation will become more serious than before. Members of the Police Committee have not met to consider the situation since the last session of Council, and while many applications for the vacant positions on the force have been received, the committee is not prepared to make recommendations.

Chairman E. U. Heisel will probably call a meeting of his committee some evening before the regular meeting of Council is held next Tuesday.

Mr. Slobert's investigations thus far have progressed favorably and he thinks that his efforts are nearing a successful completion.

During the few days he has been in Connellsville Mr. Slobert has visited nearly all of the sources of milk supply, and he has taken samples of the town's water supply to make an analysis.

Reports of the continued spread of the typhoid disease are received by the health authorities. Over a half dozen cases have been reported to Health Officer B. Rotter this month. Measles, too, are on the increase, a score of cases having been brought to the attention of the authorities recently.

A case of scarlet fever at the home of S. M. Levy, on South alley, was reported to Health Officer B. Rotter this morning.

Attempted to West Presidency of Republic From Him: Food Is Becoming Scarce, Famines Is Feared.

United Press Telegram.
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—The third day's battle of the rebellion began here this morning at 7:30 o'clock, when the Federalists under the leadership of President Madero began storming the position occupied by General Diaz and his forces.

Madero has many big guns trained on the rebels' position and there is brisk firing in progress.

During the fighting this morning a shell struck the Mutual Life Insurance building, setting it on fire. The structure was not seriously damaged.

"We are prepared to make a final move which will crush Diaz," said President Madero in an interview this morning. "Our men are well trained and are equipped with modern weapons, and we will be able to give a good account of ourselves."

"Diaz" he continued, "has only 1,500 men in his army, while I have over 4,000 at my command."

The streets of this city today are littered with dead and dying from yesterday's battle. Bodies are lying in the gutters and upon the pavements and no effort is being made to remove them. Food is getting scarce and prices are soaring. Troops on both sides threaten to tear up the tracks of railroads leading into the city, and this will further shorten the food supplies.

A portion of Diaz' command is advancing on the palace with heavy guns, and the rebel general threatens to raze the structure to the ground.

The loss on the Federal side yesterday is said to have amounted to more than 1,000 killed and wounded. Madero declares that this estimate is an exaggeration, but it is believed to be correct.

General Diaz this morning declares that he lost only 20 followers in yesterday's engagement.

The Mexican town of La Ascension was destroyed by Federalists yesterday, and the dispatches received here this morning. The town is located in Sonora province, and was a hotbed of rebel activities. The wrecking party completely destroyed the municipal building, and attacked the jail, releasing all prisoners. The convicts joined their ranks and committed much bloodshed.

With the center of the city shaking with the roar of cannon and machine guns, stopping every few seconds to give the infantrymen time to pop at any band that may appear on the street, the bombardment of Diaz' position by Madero continued all morning.

The Diaz forces have their guns trained on the high buildings of the city, where the Federalists are entrenched. Many of the roofs of the structures have been set on fire, and the fighting is going on fiercely all over the city.

The cable office, in which your correspondent is writing his dispatches, was struck by a shell during the early stages of the battle. It demolished the room next to the one in which he was sitting and tore a great hole in the brick wall.

Three thousand prisoners in the city prisons were released by Diaz this morning, and they joined forces with the rebels. A state of anarchy prevails in various parts of the city.

Discussed to Wed.

W. H. Means of Lemont and Nellie V. Loughrey of Scotland, were granted a marriage license in Uniontown yesterday.

When Sergeant McLaughlin Attempts to Interfere in Quarrel;
Prisoner Held for Court by Squire.

After a desperate struggle during which a law officer attempted to arrest various articles of furniture thrown about, Sergeant Thomas McLaughlin, of the State Constabulary, arrested John Sidebottom at the latter's home on Main street last night.

Sidebottom threatened to kill his wife and daughter and then himself, and when arrested he had a loaded revolver.

The man attempted to hang himself about a year ago, it is said, and his actions lead the police to believe that he was temporarily insane last night.

According to the story told by one of the Sidebottom children, Sidebottom became angry because the mother and daughter were not home when he entered. He flew into a fit of rage and threatened to kill both upon their return, they said. According to one of the upstairs rooms he secured a revolver and prepared to carry out his threat. A new black suit of clothes which had been recently purchased, he laid out in the parlor, declaring "they can bury me in them."

The children became alarmed at the actions of the parent, and summoned an aunt, who went in search of Mrs. Sidebottom.

When the woman learned of the actions of her husband, she notified the City Hall and Sergeant McLaughlin responded. He found the Major, as he is known, stretched out on two chairs in the front room of the home.

As the officer entered the room, Sidebottom sprang to his feet and made a rush in his direction. Mrs. Sidebottom and her daughter, however, appeared, and then, and the crazed man changed his course, making a lunge at them.

Sergeant McLaughlin was too quick for him, and caught him about the waist. Sidebottom struggled to get loose. Articles of furniture and a burning lamp were overturned.

Two members of the family attempted to assist their parents, and for a time the Sergeant had three persons to contend with.

Sidebottom was taken to the City Hall where he was confined for the night. This morning he was given a hearing before Squire Donegan. He was committed to jail to await the action of court.

CAR WHEEL ORDERS

Enormous Orders are Placed for Steel Car Wheels.

Steel car wheels that will be required for the new freight cars now contracted for by leading railroads have reached a total of 84,000 in the past 10 days. This represents a consumption of nearly 60,000 tons of steel, providing all the business is placed as expected.

Contracts have already been taken for between 20,000 and 25,000 steel wheels, including 10,000 for the Wheeling & Lake Erie and between 15,000 and 20,000 for the especially heavy cars of the Norfolk & Western.

The Pennsylvania's recent order for 12,300 cars includes 3,000 which will likely require all steel wheels. These requirements would mean 64,000 wheels alone. The demand for these wheels has grown so much that it has become one of the important finished lines of the largest steel companies in the country.

The Carnegie Steel Company has taken orders from the Norfolk & Western and Wheeling & Lake Erie roads and its two steel wheel plants are operating at full capacity, with business for many months according to the steel trade, promises to be a record breaker for this comparatively new feature of railroad equipment, a feature that had its inception in Pittsburg and founded by Pittsburg inventors.

The total value of the car wheels mentioned and in business placed and about to be placed, will run from $1,250,000 to $1,500,000.

SALESMANSHIP AND SHOPPING.

(Copyright, 1911, by J. B. Fallon.)

How delightful it is when you go shopping in an undisturbed state of mind to find a salesperson who can tell you what fabrics are to be most popular and what is most appropriate for a woman of your class or one who will sell you a hat that is really becoming and is capable enough not to say that "everyone looks lovely on you."
The merchants who advertise in THE COURIER take particular pains to see that their salespeople are well informed on newest modes and correct styles in dress, furniture, whatever they may sell. You will be well advised if you accept their help—which is never given for nothing.
Read the advertisements in THE COURIER closely and constantly every day. They tell you where to find the best goods and where you will get the best service to be had in this city.

THE REWARD OF VIRTUE.

Whether the Trust-Busters convict the United States Steel Corporation of being a "combination in restraint of trade" and consequently an unlawful aggregation of wealth, not to mention brains and brawn, it is generally admitted that its policy has been conservative and its influence has been distinctly for good. It has been a powerful factor in holding prices at reasonable and steady levels. On this point, the American Metal Market says:

"If the management of the United States Steel Corporation had not been so ultra conservative during the improvement in market conditions which began in November, 1911, and extended through last year, the steel market would now be suffering from the adverse influence of the change in general business conditions and the decidedly pessimistic feeling in business and financial circles generally. As it is, the steel business is in the soundest possible condition. Not a ripple has been caused by developments which at any time in the past would have been very seriously felt in this industry."

"No movement in finished steel products has ever withstood the pressure from outside conditions which the present steel market has withstood. It is now practically four months since finished steel products stopped advancing after what was almost a continuously advancing tendency for nearly a year. In all times in the past the market has been unable to hold itself for four months at advanced prices. Either the advance had to be continued, or the market would decline. The 1912 rise is the most recent experience. Hardly had prices stopped advancing until they began to waver."

"The utmost moderation was accomplished in the advance in steel products while it lasted. It was perfectly rational to all competent observers that prices did not advance nearly as much as was warranted by conditions, applying as a measure the precedents of all the past. In other times even advancing prices had been tinged by artificial support or encouragement. In the recent movement any artificiality noticeable was in the direction of restraining the advance, the tendency caused by natural conditions."

"The corporation now finds itself individually benefited by its moderation. We do not know the motives which prompted the movement. We do not know whether in the holding back there was a definite aim to be enabled to pick out the best business, but the outcome is that the corporation finds itself fortified at this juncture with a tenacity on its books of the most dependable character. Long ago our Pittsburgh market reports remarked that the corporation was selling in some instances at below its competitors' prices, and that this amounted to its paying a dollar a ton for the opportunity to pick its orders, and it was suggested that the future would tell whether the corporation had invested that dollar a ton wisely or not. The time has arrived and it says that the investment was a good one."

In other words, "Virtue hath its own reward."

PATERNALISM NOT PORK.

The request of the Bureau of Mines for an appropriation of $300,000 for the erection of proper buildings at Pittsburgh for its testing station and experimental work should receive a prompt affirmative vote.
This public building has no place in the Congressional Pork Bar. It is not backed by politics; its sponsor is humanity. It is not intended as an architectural ornament to the city, or a convenience to the citizens; it is not signed to carry forward the great work of safeguarding the lives of those who toll far down in the black depths of the mine.

Much progress has already been made with the limited resources at the command of Director Holmes and his able assistants, and much more is constantly expected. To such a work the nation should give liberally. The amount asked is moderate. It should be voted unhesitatingly. It is not gross Pork; it is fine Paternalism.

LINCOLN.

This is the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, and the country does well to honor his memory by making it a legal holiday even though his observance is not allowed to interfere very much with the busy life of this bustling country. The great Republican President of the Nation was uncouth in personal appearance, but gentle in spirit and clean in heart. Beneath his simple manners was a subtle mentality and a large endurance which enabled him to grasp the great problems of Revolution and solve them with unvarying patience through long years of bloody struggle which frequently rose to ruthless slaughter.
We are told that Lincoln was the first Progressive we know that he was the first Republican President and we don't believe he would have disputed the count and run an independent candidate had the Republican National Convention nominated William Henry Seward, his chief opponent, at Chicago in 1860.

CODE AND CONSTITUTION.

The proposed new High School building, involving as it does an expenditure of $200,000, will have to be submitted to the people for their approval or rejection.

The statement that the School Code empowers the School Board to expend as much as 7 per centum of the assessed valuation of the district, without the consent of the voters expressed at the polls seems to be borne out by the text of the code; but it must be remembered that the code is a mere Act of the Legislature, and that the supreme law of the State is the Constitution, which says, Article IX, Section 2:

"The debt of any county, city, borough, township or school district, shall never exceed 7 per centum of the assessed value of the property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding 10 per centum of the assessed valuation of property, WITHOUT THE ASSENT OF THE ELECTIONS."

Whether this were the law or not, however, we imagine that the School Directors would naturally hesitate to assume the responsibility of spending so large a sum of public money, and would, personally, prefer that the question be determined for them by such a referendum as the Constitution happily requires.

The Brownsville bridge has been approved again and is back to the War Department. In spite of the natural impatience of the Brownsville people, some indignation that the Fayette County Commissioners are opposed to this free bridge, it is a matter of record that our commissioners have voted for the bridge every time it has been up for consideration. If there has been any war upon this bridge, it has been made by the War Department.

A message from Medicine Hat has arrived.

The Western Maryland is taking an active interest in the work of booming Conneltsville. While it is thus trying to make business for Conneltsville, the railroad expects to make some business for itself. It's an unwise railroad management that cannot see the advantage of booming the best town along the line.

The man who invents fireproof awnings will deserve the thanks of the public and a fair share of the money he saves.

The Ripper spirit is in the Juniata air again.

Connellsville does not wish to entice the State Constables from their State allegiance, but if any of them want a regular job on the Conneltsville police force they ought not to be allowed to ask for it more than once.

It looks very much as if the striking cops had struck themselves out.

The more the West Penn expands the more it contracts.

It's about time to get out the Paint Creek Patrol again.

To the Huger traffic politics is often a very expensive business.

The Fayette County Farmers should do more than compare their farms with those of grandfather's; they should make them better than grandfather's, in spite of the coke smoke and the honey-combed underground.

It is difficult to understand how such a wreck as that on the Lake Erie yesterday could happen on a railroad so carefully managed and regulated, but it is evident that the rule of Safety First was momentarily overlooked by somebody.

The health probe thinks it has struck pay dirt.

Somerset county's centennarian is dead at the age of 101. In his death the famous Somerset county air loses one of its best advertisements.

The Conneltsville State hospital should not suffer in its proper needs by reason of the choosy-purging habits of any public body.

Harrisburg is full of rumors and reforms, but as yet there have been disclosed no West Virginia methods.

THE INSTITUTE PLANS BEING MADE FOR SCOTSDALE

Meeting to Arrange Program Called for Saturday Afternoon Next.

THREE STATE SPEAKERS ON

The Sessions Will Be Held For Two Days in Next Month, and Will Draw a Large Crowd; Dr. O. C. Engle Is Leaving Scottdale; Other Notes.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Feb. 12.—Preparations are now under way for the annual State Institute to be held in Scottdale on Friday and Saturday, March 14 and 15, and Chairman Edward Werkman has called a meeting of all those interested in the institute on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Hon. M. P. Shoemaker of Greensburg, has written that the State speakers will be Dr. M. L. Conrad of Western Indiana, Prof. Franklin Menzies of York and J. H. Tenchey of Belleville. These speakers have been in Scottdale in years past and the fact of their coming is complete assurance of their being ones to please the people of this community.

Another attraction will be Dr. Stephen, the farmer at the Allegheny county workhouse, and will talk on "The Business of Fruit Growing: Growing an Orchard, Pruning Fruit Trees, Controlling Insects and Diseases, Marketing the Product, etc."

Dr. Conrad will speak along these lines and also on selecting and breeding horses for farm and market. Prof. Menzies will speak on the subjects of fertilizers and chemical chemistry in the country school, the necessity of education for the farmers and economy in production of crops. J. H. Tenchey of Belleville will speak on that interesting subject of alfalfa. In this section, of clover crops, hoes for profit and corn growing. Besides the speakers the usual literary and musical programs will be arranged for by those who will meet at the independent office on Saturday, when committees will also be named, and a place of meeting secured.

The Glee Club of the Woman's College of Frederick, Md., will give one of their most interesting and popular concerts in the Scottdale Theatre on Tuesday evening, March 25. Recently the club sang to crowded houses in Baltimore, Lancaster, Hanover and other places and the press in each of these cities published the highest testimonials of the merit of the concert. Thus those who have arranged for the club's coming feel warranted in saying that the people of Scottdale will be given an evening of entertainment such as they have not had in a long time.

TIME IS CHANGED.

The second of the meetings of the evangelist series took place in the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening and will be continued this week. The meeting time has changed to 7:45, as the minister, Rev. H. S. Piper said "that will give you personal workers more time. It can be more bustling on your part and less preaching on mine." Dr. H. D. Whitfield who was to have preached here has been laid up with the grippe.

MARGARET STALL.

Margaret Stall, a teacher, will be the next attraction, and an extra number as well. In the V. M. C. A. Centre, coming here on Friday evening, at the Scottdale theatre at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Stall's recitations are of dramatic quality and as it has been a long time since an attraction of this nature has appeared in the entertainment course it is probable that it will draw a very large house.

IS GOING AWAY.

Dr. O. C. Engle, who has been a resident of Scottdale almost a dozen years, and one of the best known physicians of this locality, is moving with his family to Alliquipp this week. Dr. James Fleming of Key West, Florida, will move into Dr. Engle's home and use the office on Spring street. Dr. Fleming is a former citizen of Rochester, and has had extensive practice, particularly in hospital work. It is said it will be with widespread regret that the people of this community learn of Dr. Engle's leaving here, as he has won a high place in the regard of the people, has been an active man in church and civic betterment, and a leader in everything that pertained to a bigger and better Scottdale. He expects to be here on March first to spend the day and will be glad to meet with anyone regarding business relations at his former office at that time.

The February White Sale Of Greatest Importance Begins Here Friday

10,000 Yards of Fresh, New Spring Embroideries

Just Over From St. Gall to Participate in the White Sale

The embroidery section is out to make a record at this sale—and is prepared for a notable beginning Friday—with all February importations in from St. Gall; some 10,000 yards of fresh, snow-white embroideries in all, and with the white sale prices so favorable as to allow a full saving of a third, there is every reason to expect stirring selling.

At once noticeable is the absolute newness of the patterns. There's almost a total change in designs; a fact that is due to cause a lavish use of embroideries on this Spring's garments. Briefly touching upon quality: These are not "sale" embroideries shorn of quality to appeal in price—but the fine, perfectly worked and therefore durable sorts with the added feature of being marked a third below the regular values. It's your most profitable time to lay in a supply of embroideries for early Spring sewing.

Simple, Beautiful Muslin Underwear

Such dainty, dreamy garments one would hardly expect to find so moderately priced. There many muslin underclothes makers in America, but only a few of them are clever and particular enough to make the grade of muslin wear sold in this sale.

Such combinations of soft, dainty fabrics, and simple elegance in lines, and carefulness of skill in machine and needle work, were never presented in this city before.

Architects Drawing - Looking from the Potomac

Abraham Lincoln

Ground Plan of the Lincoln Memorial

The Lincoln National Memorial as it will Appear when Completed

AFTER years of planning and discussion, the United States is at last to honor the memory of Abraham Lincoln with a great national memorial at the seat of government. The testimonial in marble and bronze, which will be erected on the bank of the Potomac River at Washington, will cost upward of $2,000,000, and it will be in every way a fitting tribute to that martyr President who was so largely form of the memorial could not agree as to just where it should be located. Some wanted it on the banks of the Potomac; others favored Arlington Cemetery; a third group argued for a site on the grounds of the National Soldiers' Home, and a fourth favored a location overlooking the city on the heights of Sixteenth street, a broad avenue which runs due north from the White House. There were even some adherents of a proposal for placing

When it came to securing a design for the Lincoln Memorial the Commission was evidently to "come true" at last—the Commission engaged the services of Mr. Henry Bacon and his son, John, who are well-known architects of New York. Each of these experts, in due course, prepared several complete designs including the design of the building and the outcome of this competition was that the Commission chose Mr. Bacon to prepare the final design for the memorial. The design he prepared should be submitted to Congress for its approval.

That the design which was finally accepted is an admirable one may be seen from the fact that the members of the Commission were unanimous in accepting it and in recommending that Congress approve the design. The design is in accordance with these plans. Architect Bacon was, from the outset, impressed with the possibilities of Potomac Park and he had in mind, from the beginning, in the midst of a large area of undeveloped land—and he has worked out his idea that a monumental structure should be placed on the hill, surrounded by an amphitheatre of hills, will be as wisely seen and appear quite as impressive as though it were placed on the top of the hill or on the hills on either side of the river.

The new Lincoln Memorial is to appear impressive in many degrees. The effectiveness of this to a national hero will be further heightened by the fact that it will almost inevitably be in association with the Washington National Monument and the dome of the Capitol. The monument will be in direct line. Thus great axis, planned over a ago, we will have at one end the Washington National Monument, the dome of the government. To the west, over distant from the Capitol is the monument to Washington, the foremost of the founders of the government. The monument to the west and upward of a mile from the Washington Monument have a monument to the memory of the man who was the first to bring one complete and gratifying testimonial of a nation's gratitude from the very beginning of the nation. The subject, Architect Bacon believed that this Memorial to him Lincoln should embody the main features of the Washington National Monument. The line involving the dome of the Capitol, the successful design. The four features thus given emphasis compare specifically a statue of the man who was the first to bring one memorial of his second inauguand eleven feet in height on the outer edge of which will be planted four concentric rows of trees leaving a plateau in the center 766 feet in diameter—that is, a circular area eight times the size of the Capitol. In the center of this plateau, surrounded by a wide roadway and walks, will rise an entrance supporting a rectangular stone terrace 186 feet high. From this terrace will rise a platform 118 feet wide. On this rectangular space, in turn, will rise the marble memorial, but there need be no fear of its being too high, for it will be for all the foundations of the steps, terraces and the memorial proper will rest on concrete piling which will extend to the bottom of the plateau.

The platform of the memorial under the columns already mentioned, will be 204 feet in length and 134 feet in width. The columns, referred to above, will be 118 feet long and 118 feet wide and the individual columns will each be 44 feet high and 7 feet 5 inches in diameter at the base. From the top of the columns will be surmised that the whole effect of this gleaming white pile will be massive as well as imposing. The total height of the memorial, including the platform, shall be 92 feet. The colonnade entrance to the Memorial Hall is to be of the same height and will be filled with plate glass. Ordinarily, in pleasant weather these sliding doors will be rolled back into space provided in the walls, thus opening a white-curtained vista of the plain; but at night they will be closed for the protection of the Memorial and its main course can be followed in safety.

It is to be noted that the entrance that ample light will be admitted to the interior through the extensive glass surface of the Memorial Hall. Moreover the statue will stand to a height of 70 feet in length by 50 feet in width and 40 feet in height. Each of the four sides, either side where the statue is placed, the sculptor is carving Lincoln's most famous speeches, will be 27 feet in length, 27 feet in width and 60 feet in height. Each of these sides will be of the same height as the hall and partially screened by means of a row of Ionic columns, each 50 feet high.

As planned this Memorial will easily cost every penny of the $3,000,000 appropriated by Congress and upon it. The architect after consulting with experienced monumental contractors, figures that the monumental proper for the Lincoln Memorial at $1,775,000. But this does not allow anything for the statue of Lincoln, the bronze memorials of his two speeches or the architecture of the two wings. The Lincoln Memorial will require all the balance of $125,000. And this makes no provision for the landscape gardening around the monument and steps and stairways leading from the Memorial down to this waterway. However, there is no disposition to dispense with the huge statue of Lincoln, which will be placed adjacent to the artistic environment of the Memorial. Indeed, it has become quite the prevailing fashion to provide an artificial waterway, and the Lincoln Memorial is to be a monument to the structure and serving as a mirror to reflect its outlines. How much such a beauty can add to the beauty of the Lincoln Memorial at Washington, D. C., is what the Memorial at Canton, Ohio, which was created on that plan.

Now that both the Senate and House of Representatives have approved the report and recommendations of the Lincoln Memorial Commission, appropriations for the memorial will be made. It is expected that it will take under the usual "non-binding contract" plan, and at last we shall see a fulfillment of the long-delayed and long-wished-for Lincoln Memorial. It is to be noted that the bill to fund on the public lands ever since the year 1869, at which early date Congress incorporated a Lincoln Memorial in the National Park. The bill was introduced by the United States was made Treasurer, but of which nothing ever came. As Sen. Stanford was disappointed in this bill, that the remaining survivors of that generation that knew Lincoln should pass away and leave no memorial of their reverence and love for him in the city of the home of his service and sacrifice.

U. S. Shares Have Had a Wide Range on the Market.

As it is one of the most widely dealt in stocks on the New York board, the price range of the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation since the company's inception makes a most interesting study. Since organization the low range of Steel common was 8%, touched on May 17, 1904, and the high 94%, on October 4, 1909. The low level for the preferred was 4%, November 10, 1904, and the high 131 on October 4, 1909.

From the middle of 1904 to the latter part of 1906 the tendency of Steel common was upward. With narrow fluctuations the common advanced from 75% in 1904 to 50% in 1905, and 40% in 1906. In the latter part of 1907, when the stock dropped to 21%, in the latter part of 1907 until the latter part of 1908 there was an upward swing, the common touching 53%. The United States Steel Corporation started a price warfare which carried the shares down to 41% in the first quarter of 1909. From that point on there was a sharp rise, advanced with very little variation, the common reaching its high record level of 24½% in the latter part of 1909.

CHAPTER XX.

What cheer of the harvest? The blood of youth is hot. He followed her, in spite of all, forgetting all. They had advanced across the hall toward the room, or library. "Oh, Charley, Charley! Don't be in a hurry," she called. "At least till to-night, till to-morrow. I don't know what to do. Let us see him first, and tell him."

"Look about you," he commented grimly. "You're going to lose all this—all these splendid, beautiful things. You don't mind losing them? I want to be poor. Oh, my God! Just to be loved, and clean! Charley, can we?"

"But why choose me? There are so many others!"

"All like Mr. Rawn himself—men of money, power, selfishness. I wanted something different. Do you think it could have been my father's old ideas coming out in me, so late?"

"But you'll have to leave him in any case. Divorce is simple enough. You know what I would have done, and done, also, in any case. Grace and I—"

"Yes, I know all about everything. Everything's past," she said despairingly. "We're dead. It's all over!"

"I ought to go," he asked vaguely. "Yes, pretty soon. But I suppose you'll have to see Grace, and to-night I'll have to see—"

He bowed his head. "Yes, we've got to pay that part first. The best we can do and all we can give ought to be enough for him."

She turned, left him, passing through the great doors to the control room within. Following her still, he found her at the stair and joined her. There approached them now, with hasty tread and face somewhat excited, the medical man who had been for so many days now in attendance upon Grace. Rawn and her husband. He had come on his morning visit unannounced by them.

"Ah," he began, "I'm glad to find you, Mr. Rawn, and you, Mr. Halsey. I've been looking for you—Come! Come quickly! His face showed plainly his agitation."

"Is there anything wrong?" demanded Halsey sharply. "What's the trouble?"

"It is my duty to tell you the truth," began the doctor. "Your wife is a very sick woman, indeed."

"I know that, you,"

"But not the worst until this morning, until just now. Something—"

"I've been in the house waiting—why did you not call me?" began Halsey clumsily.

"You must not wait!" the doctor interrupted him, taking him by the arm and hastening toward the stairway.

They followed him up the stair, down the upper hall, to the room which had been set apart of late days for Grace and her child, quarters all too unfamiliar to Halsey himself.

They found Grace Halsey, faint and gasping, half sitting in her bed, clasping the child in her arms, her face weak now longer to hold it up. Halsey, stricken with sudden horror, ran to take the child in his own arms.

"The truth was obvious. Even as he lifted the poor crippled form in his arms, the head fell back, helpless. The eyes glazed, turned back uncovered. Halsey cried out aloud. He turned about, dazed, horror and helplessness were on his face. It was to Virginia Rawn he turned, as to the other part of himself.

It was Virginia Rawn who took from him the feeble, misshapen body, gathering it into his own arms. She gazed intently, frowning, at the woman's grief over suffering, bending over its face; her own face held back over it when she saw the truth. Then she passed him and placed the body of the child upon its cot nearby, covering it gently.

"Grace, Grace!" sobbed Halsey. He fell upon his knees at his wife's bedside. She did not see him, did not recognize him, although she turned a questioning face toward him. "Me, too!" he cried. "I want to go! I want to die and end it! Everything's wrong."

"Come," said the doctor presently. "It's too late now. I'll call for you after a time." He took Halsey by the arm and led him from the room. Retreating, he signed for Virginia Rawn also to leave the sick chamber. Left alone, the medical man turned to the professional nurse in attendance.

"Keep it quiet," he said. "It would hurt my practice—do you hear?"

He kicked beneath the bed a small broken vial, and wiped away the stain from the lips of the dying woman.

The doctor, of course, had his guess. The public's guess, the daily papers there. The truth was, Grace Halsey, by butler route, had learned of the late note of her husband and her mother a half hour before this time.

to pass, scenting disaster even as had others. The magic which had built this mansion house now locked strength to hold its tenants. There remained now only one man—the butler, lingering for his pay. Only two persons might still be said to be actuated by any sense of loyalty or duty to Graystone Hill and its owner—Halsey and Virginia Rawn.

Of duty—to what and to whom? They dared not ask, dared not think. They waited, they knew not for what. The master of this mansion house was forth upon his business. Somewhere, he was hastening toward his home.

When he might be toward the door, he did not know. Nor did the master know what news awaited him upon his coming.

The evening dailies came out upon the streets, reeling and reeking with the last accumulating sensations of the Rawn disaster. The business world continued to rub its eyes, the social world continued to exist. Many and many a woman smiled that evening as she contemplated proofs of the downfall of one whom once she had envied. The Rawns, it now seemed, had all along been known, by everybody who was anybody, to have been nobody at all. They who had down the wind, had the whirlwind for their reaping. This was the general day of harvest for Graystone Hill.

But the day passed on. Shadow lengthened beyond the tall towers and softened as they fell toward the east. The soft airs of evening, turning.

ment regarding Mrs. Halsey's death by "heart failure"—the rich and all akin to them always die respectfully, in a house so large as Graystone Hill.

But it was too late to save her, Rawn reasoned. Let the dead bury the dead. The larger things must outweigh the small. He first must know what his wife had done with Halsey.

To the tense, strained nerves of John Rawn the truth was now as apparent as it had been to the nonabilities of all these others, late friends, servants, eye-witnesses. Rawn was born in his citadel, his castle of pride. Only one thing could save him. . . . He hesitated at the door, held back from that which he knew he was about to face. . . . But no, he reasoned, she was there alone, he must see her!

He flung open the folding doors and stood holding them apart.

Yes, she was there! John Rawn's face drew into a ghastly smile. Yes, she had won! She, the wonderful woman, had triumphed as he had planned for her to triumph. She had won!

They stood before him, those two, silent, face to face, embracing; their arms about each other even as he flung wide the door. They turned to him now, stupefied, so weary, so overstrained, that their arms still hung, embraced. The face of each was white, desolate, unhappy; more hopeless and desperate than terrified, but horrible. They were lovers. They loved, but what could love do for them, so late? They had paid—but what right had they to love, so late?

John Rawn, the man who had wrought all this, stood and gazed, ghastly, smiling, dazed, at his wife's face. Why, then, should she be unhappy? What was to be lost save that which he, John Rawn, was losing—or had been about to lose?

But he was startled, stupefied, himself, for one moment. He turned back, hesitating; and so tipped away, leaving them, although the joint knowledge of all was obvious. They had not spoken a word, had not started apart, had only gazed at him like dead persons, white, silent, motionless—not lovers; no, not lovers.

For one-half instant, alone in the wide and darkened hall, Rawn straightened himself up, threw his chest out. Yes, she had won—she had done her task! She held Charles Halsey fast—there—in her embrace. He, John Rawn, multimillionaire, collector of rare objects, one of God's anointed rich, had the shrewdest wife the world had ever seen, the most beautiful, the most successful!

Had he not seen—was it not there before his eyes? She had his one enemy netted, in her power—there—had he not seen? She brought him, bound hand and foot, to him, John Rawn! Could a man doubt his eyes? They had hunted well in couples, he and his wife, and now she had pulled down their latest victim!

What mattered the means?—there was but one great thing. And the great things must outweigh the small. He was a man of power. He had been born for success. He was—

He stood, half in the shadow, hesitating. Then he heard other feet approaching him slowly. His wife, Virginia, came and took him by the arm and had him within the door; closed it back of him; and, leaving him, advanced to where Halsey stood. She took Halsey by the hand. . . . It seemed a singular thing to Rawn, this performance; in fact, almost improper, if the truth were known. . . . So it seemed to John Rawn's mind, a trifle clouded with distress and drink.

"Well," said she apologetically, and held her peace as he frowned and and looked at her dumbly.

"Well!" he broke out at last; "I'm back again!—You're here, I see!" This last to Halsey.

They two stood and regarded him without comment. Halsey kept his eye on Rawn's hand, expecting some sudden movement for a weapon. He was incredulous that any man could sustain Rawn's attitude toward him. War, and seeking but was seemed inevitable between himself and Rawn, the man whom he had wronged, the man who had wronged him.

"I suppose—I see—" began Rawn clumsily, after a while. "Of course, you have probably been here all the time, Charley. I came back as soon as I could. I've been having all kinds of trouble in St. Louis and New York. Everything's all gone to pieces."

They did not answer him, and he shuffled.

"Have you anything to say?" he demanded of his wife; "has Mr. Halsey—Charley—agreed?—Have you persuaded him to—"

"You wish to know whether I have done what I was told to do—is that it?" she demanded of him coldly.

"Yes, have you?"

"I have. Here is Mr. Halsey. I have kept my word. You have seen. I told you I could bring him in, bound hand and foot. Kiss me, Charley," she cried. "Oh, kiss me!" And he did kiss her. Cold, white, hand in hand, dead, dead, they faced him again.

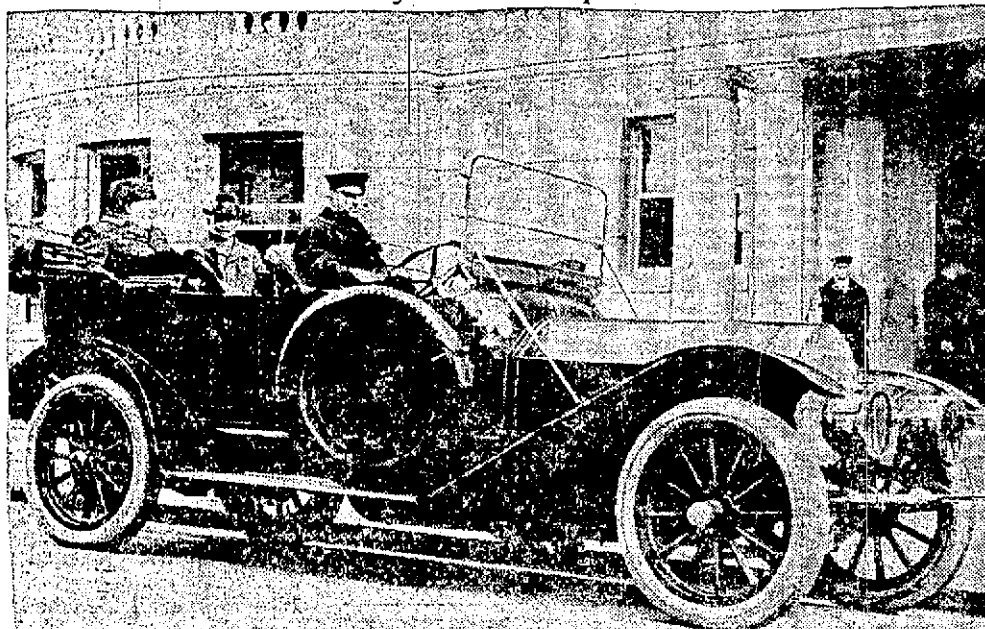

"Is it true?" began Rawn. His eyes lighted up suddenly. "He has agreed?" Halsey broke in now. "It is true, Mr. Rawn," said he. "I love her. I love your wife; I can't help it. I have told her so. You see."

"You love her? John Rawn burst out into a great, croaking laugh. "You love her? That's good! That's good news to tell me, isn't it? Why? I sent her—I used her, to make you love her! You see reason now at last, do you?—every man does at last—every man has his price. You'll go back to work to-morrow? There's a lot to do, but we can save it all yet. We can whip them. I tell you—you'll get everything back in our own hands before to-morrow night!"

"But, Mr. Rawn! Listen! You do not know! Surely you do not understand?"

"Understand? What is there left to understand? Didn't I see you both just now? Didn't you—right now—haven't you got to come across now? Haven't she done what I told her to do; what she said she'd do? I told her to bring you back to us again, and she's done it, hasn't she?"

President Taft Is Enjoying His Last Days as Occupant of the White House

PRESIDENT TAFT IN WHITE HOUSE AUTO

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—President Taft is enjoying his final days as President of the United States, and the Taft family is usually in evidence when he is seen. He has already made his plans for the immediate future. When he leaves the White House with President-elect Wilson to return with President-elect Wilson he will leave his wife and daughter behind. They will go at once to the home of Miss Mabel Boardman, where they will remain until time to take a train for Augusta, Ga. On their return to the White House Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson will shake hands, wish each other good luck, and the ex-president will depart. One of the White House automobiles will be placed at his disposal. If he has time he will join his family at Miss Boardman's but the chances are that he will have only time to reach the station in time to join his family here for the trip to Augusta.

RIDING THROUGH LIFE.

Every John Deew day is divided into so many periods of work, recreation, reading, correspondence and study with the exactness of a timetable. Daylight is very precious to him. It is only then that he is not an actor. Mr. Deew realizes this so keenly that in working out his daily schedule he cuts down all loss of time by being driven from place to place, starting with an early morning horseback ride in the park.

AT THE THEATRES.

THE SOISSON.

"MUTT AND JEFF" is the production of Bud Fisher's peculiar character creations. "Mutt and Jeff" is undoubtedly entitled to the well worn and oft used expression "The most talked of play of the year." This is one instance when a play, or at least the inspiration for a play of the same title, was immensely popular before it was ever written. The "Mutt and Jeff" cartoons now running in the New York American and hundreds of other daily newspapers throughout the United States, have reached a point of popularity never before achieved by any other series of cartoons in the history of Journalism. A few off-hand dashes of a piece of chalk in the hands of a clever artist, have made two continents indulge in a daily "laugh fest." All glory to the brain that conceived the idea. Gus Hill is sending to the Soisson theatre Friday, February 15, a company of 50 people, especially fitted to present "Mutt and Jeff" in a musical comedy form. It is openly acknowledged by all that this is the real novelty production of the current year. Much is expected by admirers of Fisher's peculiar studies and the play scheduled to appear in this city will fully realize your most ardent expectations. It is all mine to wait for "Mutt and Jeff" it is one great big laugh.

"THE ROSE MAID" "The Rose Maid" was sent as far as China to secure special "properties" for this pleasing opera which is coming to the Soisson theatre Tuesday, Feb. 12. In the first act is shown the grand salon of the Duke of Chester's London house with its palatial settings. Among the bright and airy two modern maidens, being miniature copies of two historic statues found in the Emperor's palace in Peking. These quaint Chinese beauties, when questioned by "The Rose Girl," in the opera, and their shaven poll "yes" and "no" exactly as the originals do. There is a Chinese legend to the effect that many centuries ago, China had an Emperor who in old age lost his power of speech and invented two nodding maidens to answer for him during state councils. They stood one one either side of the throne chair. By pressing an invisible spring one at a time would "yes" and then other nodded "no." The composer of "The Rose Maid" has utilized the idea in connection with a pretty duet in the opera.

THE NEW LYRIC

J. R. Goucher, New Manager, Makes Many Changes. Under the management of J. R. Goucher, the Lyric theatre on Pittsburgh street, has developed into an up-to-date moving picture house. The name of the theatre has been changed to the New Lyric, and as the name implies, everything about the house is new. Improvements and renovations have been made throughout, and the film service improved. The latest in moving pictures is being shown and the management expresses a willingness to secure the pictures portrayed by patrons of the house.

Among the pictures on the program for this week are the great films "Shipwrecked in the Icebergs" and "Power of Destruction." Both are of intense interest, and the management expects that the house will be crowded when these pictures are shown.

YOUNG WOMEN BOWL

Koback's Staff Holds Contest on the Temple Alley. The young women of Koback's store gave a private duckpin party last evening on the temple alley. They divided into sides, Miss Blosser and Miss Decker being chosen as captains. Miss Blosser's team won, taking the first two games. Miss Decker's team came back strong in the third, winning it by a good margin. The winning team scored in the neighborhood of 200 plus, the other team totaled about 125. The lineup was as follows:

Sore Throat Wisdom

If every mother could realize the danger that lurks behind every case of sore throat, she wouldn't rest until she had effected a cure every time a child has it. Your family physician will verify the statement that it is a positive fact that every child with sore throat is in immediate danger of contracting Croup, Quinsy, Tonsillitis or Diphtheria, and is not removed from that danger until the throat is cured. Think of it!

Lamently or outward application of medicines do not and cannot cure the ailment, though they may offer temporary relief. Neither can you cure sore throat with a cough syrup or a cold cure. To cure, you must get at the seat of the disease, removing the cause. Nothing does that so quickly, safely and surely as TONSILINE. A single dose of TONSILINE taken upon the first appearance of sore throat may save long weeks of sickness, great expense, worry, even death. TONSILINE is the stitch in time.

Use a little sore throat wisdom and buy a bottle of TONSILINE today. You may need it tomorrow. TONSILINE is the standard sore throat remedy—best known and most effective and most used. Look for the long necked fellow on the bottle when you go to the drug store to get it. 25 cents and 50 cents. Hospital Size $1.00. All Druggists.

UNFILLED ORDERS

Falling Off in Steel Tonnage Due to Refusal of Business.

The report of the Steel Corporation on unfilled tonnage for the month ending January 31, was issued Tuesday, showing a decrease of 104,798 tons over the report of December, the total being 7,827,368 tons. The report caused no surprise, the steel men in the Pittsburgh territory stating with some emphasis that if it had been possible to book the tonnage tendered the steel companies during January, with the proviso of shipments indefinite, the unfilled tonnage would have shown more than double the loss in active gain.

The Corporation and independent companies have been declining much new business during January, because of their inability to make shipments within the six months' period that it is desired to sell steel contracts to, and as the matter stands today, most of the companies will be unable to take new contracts on any finished line before November or December.

Rumors of the construction of a wire mill at Nuevo Leon, Mexico, have been confirmed by the awarding of contracts for the mill equipment for this plant to the Monterrey Iron & Steel Company. It includes wire drawing machines, mill machinery and wire rod mills. Also, machinery for the manufacture of wire fence and barbed wire.

Contracts for the equipment went to a New England concern. This mill has been contracted by Mexico, where the market is extremely large and growing.
